How Do We Bring Conservative Leadership to our County and State Party

1. Get Active for the Long Haul and on a Regular Basis.
2. Hold your current politicians and party officials accountable (in writing) to the US Constitution, RNC platform, conservative principles and values.
3. Vet future candidates and party officials.
  - Not everyone who says they are a “Republican” is aligned to the RNC Platform.
4. Become Party Officers, PCPs, DCs, SDs, HDs, etc. in your County, Congressional District (CD), and State Parties.
5. Run for Bonus Member in your County to both State and CD.
6. Find Conservative Candidates to run in primaries to kick out RINOs.
7. Be active in fundraising and GOTV for Conservative Candidates.
8. Regularly influence the media and your community for the conservative principles.

FORMER CO STATE GOP CHAIRMAN JEFF HAYS' PLAN TO ELIMINATE THE CAUCUS

- Colorado's caucus and assembly processes are unfunded legislative mandates that are disenfranchising, exclusionary, prone to mischief, and create costly logistical burdens in exchange for very little value.
- Caucus and assembly are unfunded legislative mandates:
  - The state legislature forces private political parties to spend time and money conducting candidate selection processes not of their choosing and over which they have little authority.
  - Parties receive no tax dollars to defray these costs; costs are borne by the party and delegates.
  - Although many unaffiliated voters justifiably complain that tax dollars fund party primaries; the same argument can be made as to why the legislature mandates processes that it doesn't fund.
- Caucus and assembly are inherently disenfranchising:
  - If you are deployed, working, ill or infirm, can't find a sitter, or snowed in, then you don't get to vote, regardless of motivation or knowledge. This potentially impacts thousands of voters statewide.
- Caucus and assembly are exclusionary:
  - They require special knowledge of arcane rules, including specific time and location, procedures, delegate allocations and elevations, and justification as to why we even do elections this way.
  - Insiders and long time players who know the arcane rules have strategic advantage; the more complex the rules, the greater the advantage over average voters.
  - Precinct numbers, dates, locations, allocations, and procedures change every two years, adding to the confusion.
- They are non-specific and vague:
  - Delegates have authority to vote on a host of candidates, not all of whom may represent the precinct majority.
- Caucus and assembly are prone to mischief:
  - Despite training, we still have caucus leaders who mismanage their caucuses and fail to properly complete or deliver required paperwork.
  - Consistently low turnout allows individuals, campaigns, insurgent groups, or special interests to hijack or "roll" caucuses so they may dominate assemblies or take over party organizations. These winning strategies confuse and drive away average citizens.
  - Regardless of who is doing the hijacking, these efforts discourage voters, detract from overall electoral success, and damage the infrastructure necessary to support all of a party's candidates.
- They weaken the party:
  - Since caucus and assembly reward insiders who understand the process, they should theoretically reinforce party choice and control; ironically, by reducing the number of voters who actually vote for individual candidates, it reduces parties' credibility and relevance. Recent experience shows the lack of understanding erodes Party credibility and support.
  - Parties get blamed by confused and disgruntled voters for a broken process they do not control.
  - Party organizations are consumed for four months planning and executing processes that only serve 10% of the party electorate.
  - Caucus and assembly producers—county party officers and their volunteers—recognize their weaknesses and loathe the resource drain and low return on investment: the entire party organization must be devoted to complex processes that serve barely 10% of the party's voters. For large counties, it is a logistical nightmare that consumes the organization for four months.
- They are elitist and benefit a select few:
  - They reward insiders who know how to manipulate the processes.
  - The distillation of power—delegates electing delegates electing delegates—appears elitist to average voters.
  - Candidates, the primary consumers, get to run cheaply and focus on that extremely small group of delegates who do not represent their entire district.; attributes that lead to caucus and assembly success do not necessarily translate to success in a competitive general election.

JEFF HAYS' PLAN TO REPLACE THE CAUCUS WITH A CLOSED PRIMARY, W-T-A:

- Change Colorado state law to replace caucus and assembly with a closed primary election that decides resolutions and party general election candidates for all positions from precinct leaders to Presidential delegates to save money, reduce complexity, include more voters, and help us elect good candidates who will defend our rights and promote a strength, freedom, and prosperity.
- Eligibility to Vote in a Primary Election
  - Voters shall be registered within the precinct of their domicile and affiliated with the relevant political party no later than 60 calendar days before the primary election date.
  - Other requirements commensurate with state law.
- Primary Type
  - It shall be a closed primary; only voters affiliated with a party may vote in that party's primary.
  - Open primaries encourage outside agents to unduly or malevolently influence intraparty elections.
- Ballot Type
  - The primary ballot shall be a single, simple, precinct-centric ballot including all district races for which that precinct is a part, including party precinct leaders, state house district, state senate district, county-wide, multi-county, state-wide, and presidential delegate elections.
  - Ballots shall include resolutions that have achieved prerequisite support.
- Ballot Access
  - Candidates shall submit verified signatures of 1% and a filing fee of 1% of registered relevant party voters of the district they seek.
  - Resolutions require 2,000 verified signatures from registered relevant party voters and shall appear on all ballots.
- Election Mechanics
  - Elections shall be managed and conducted by the Colorado Secretary of state and county clerks and recorders.
  - Consistent standards for precinct size shall be applied statewide.
  - Each state party shall proportionally allocate 20,000 "elector points" to precincts based on that precinct's party voter turnout in the previous election.
  - Each precinct shall have at least one vote.
  - Elector points shall be awarded in winner-takes-all fashion for each precinct; winner-takes-all, districted elections increase voter power, force candidates to appeal to a broad spectrum of voters across their districts, reduce the possibility of factions or special interests dominating the election, and minimize voter fraud.
  - Candidates winning the plurality of votes in a given precinct receive all elector points allocated to that precinct.
  - The primary winner in each district shall be the candidate who won the plurality of elector points in precincts within that district.
  - Presidential delegates shall be awarded winner-takes-all by Congressional district.
    - The candidate receiving a plurality of state-wide elector points receives 2/9 of the total delegates allocated to Colorado by the respective national party. These delegates shall be, in priority order, the state party Chairman, Vice Chairman, Secretary, RNC Committeeman and RNC Committeewoman, Large County Representative, Small County Representative, and Treasurer. If other positions are available, they shall be appointed by the Chairman
    - Remaining delegates shall be apportioned by Congressional district, 1/9 of the total number per district.
    - The winner of the plurality of precinct elector points within a given Congressional district shall receive all of that district's delegates, 1/9 of the total number.
    - Delegates shall be those approved as by-district slates approved by each respective presidential candidate.
  - Passing Resolutions shall be those garnering a majority of precinct elector points state-wide.
- Implementation Costs
  - Since Colorado already conducts a party primary overall costs should remain the same. The primary date should be moved up to May.
  - Since parties will no longer need to plan and execute caucus and assembly processes, it decreases overall costs.

Colorado political party registration 2004-2021

The Colorado GOP consistently lost voters over the past 17 years as a proportion of total voters. This chart shows registration totals at the end of January for each year from 2004 through this January.

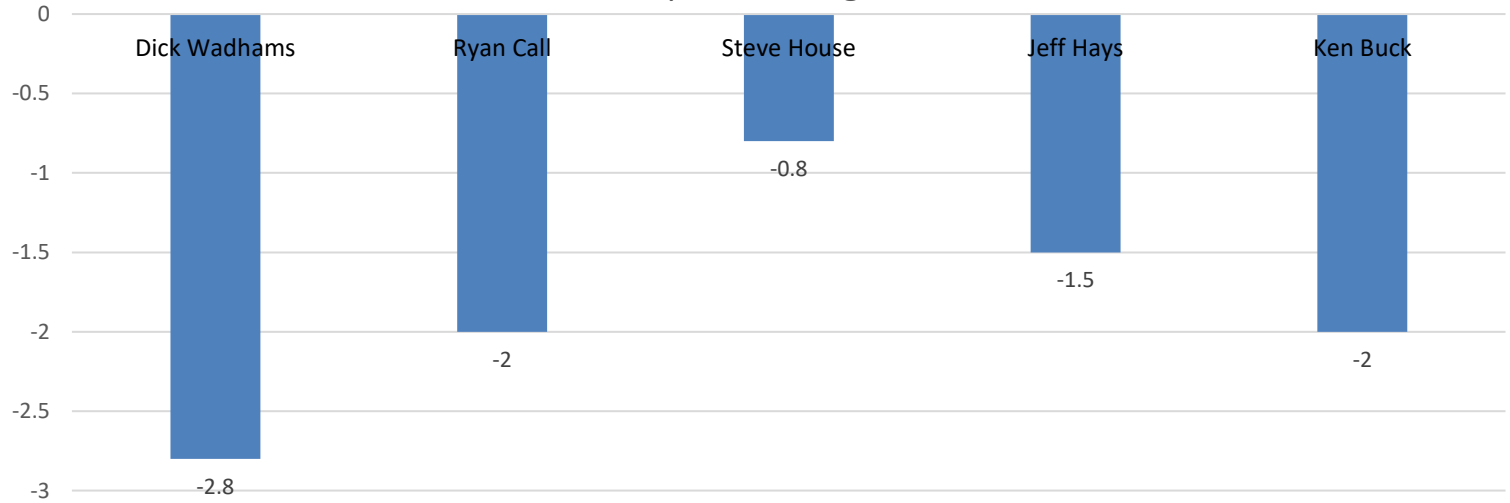

NOTE: Interesting registration trends! What's up with the uptick of UAF's prior to 2014, 2016, and 2018 elections, and why didn't "they" bother to purge the registration data after the 2018 election? Maybe nobody paid attention the years before, so they figured they would continue to get away with inflated voter rolls.

Resolution Suggestions for 2020 Colorado GOP Caucuses

March 7, 10:00 a.m. Caucus locations can be found at <http://caucus.cologop.org/>.

Resolutions are statements declaring the principles and objectives which Republicans believe would add value to the Platform of the Party<sup>1</sup> and direct the voting of Republican legislative officers at every political level. They are proposed, discussed and voted upon at precinct caucuses. Approved Resolutions are again considered at the County Assemblies and if approved there, at the State Assembly. Platform related Resolutions passed at State are submitted in writing to the NRC Convention Committee on the Platform.<sup>2</sup>

Whereas the Republican Party is built on the principle that citizens should control government, and not the other way around,<sup>3</sup> the Republicans in precinct # _____ propose for consideration at the _____ County Assembly the following Resolutions.
(Only Resolutions following "Yes" marked boxes only are to be proposed.)

- RESOLUTION SUBMISSIONS EXAMPLES

YES	NO	RESOLUTION
		1 We resolve to reject and/or repeal any government legislation, regulation or program that intends to silence, disarm, subjugate or otherwise infringe upon the constitutional rights of any law-abiding citizen.
		2 Whereas the Supreme Court declared that " If this suggestion of personhood is established , the appellant's case [i.e., "Roe" who sought an abortion], of course, collapses, for the fetus' right to life is then guaranteed specifically by the [14th] Amendment," we strongly support every effort to reverse Roe vs Wade.
		3 We strongly support Colorado's caucus/assembly/convention system as the means for citizens to choose their party leaders and government servants.
		4 We strongly support Colorado legislation that would guarantee verifiable election integrity.
		5 We strongly support every effort by the Colorado GOP to allow only Registered Republicans to elect Republicans in the primary election.
